

Complaint Escalation Process

Document Code: CS-002 | Version: 1.3 | Effective Date: 1 Jan 2026

1. When to Escalate

- The customer's issue was not resolved after the standard support flow.
- The case involves a payment dispute, suspected fraud, or safety concern.
- The customer explicitly requests escalation to a supervisor.
- The same issue has recurred multiple times for the same order.

2. Escalation Levels

Level	Handled By	Typical SLA
Level 1	Frontline support agent	First response per channel SLA
Level 2	Team lead / specialist queue	1–2 business days
Level 3	Trust & Safety / Policy team	3–5 business days
Level 4	Management review (rare, high-impact cases)	5–10 business days

3. Documentation Requirements

Every escalation must include the order ID, a summary of prior contact attempts, evidence provided by the customer, and the specific resolution being requested, to avoid asking the customer to repeat information.

4. Resolution Authority

- Level 1–2 agents: standard refunds/replacements within policy limits.
- Level 3: policy exceptions, seller penalty decisions, goodwill gestures beyond standard limits.
- Level 4: account-level actions such as permanent seller suspension or legal referral.

5. Customer Follow-Up

Once an escalated case is resolved, the customer must be notified of the outcome and reasoning. If a case is closed without the customer's requested resolution, the notification must explain why and note any further appeal options.
